

THE WORLD I WANT TO GROW UP IN

Dear World,

I have already lost you in the distance of my thoughts and I do not know how to take my words back and bring you back to your right place, to the depth of the human Heart. It has already replaced you long ago by other priorities, rushing to achieve some other goals. It grinds you, it whittles you, and you just sit still, lacking any feedback. Show your determination and resist! React and shout that you are fine and that you have the strength and courage to continue!

Just the other day, I wrote to Mankind. It said it hurt you greatly and it asks for forgiveness. It also told me they will try to bring back the pink color to people's lives. It wanted to give you a hand because you drown in emptiness. People stick thorns into you and you bleed infinitely, up to the moment it ends... Do not welcome your dark guest who will take your soul far away, in the abyss of pain and grief.

And just now, Life calls on me: "How do I unite with my brother - the World - and walk the path together? I am not sinless, I admit that. O World, please forgive me for each scratch I made to your heart and for each scar I made to your great soul."

Here comes Love, sounding with the echo of yearning: "My dear, my souls seeks you and cannot be without you. I need Peace, Life, Humanity and Unity. I know that we are your foundations and that you cannot survive without us. But for a long time we have been swimming somewhere in the distance, far away from you, and the waves overthrow us and pull us away. Still, we will endure because you are worth fighting for!"

Peace seems to hesitate to utter a word but still he decides to say: "Man needs me the most, you know that yourself. Just like you. He needs us all to reach the top, to achieve his goal. I think you understand why we cannot be separated. When you are gone, our family is thorn up, crumbled. We are unity, do you understand? We want you back, all over the world!"

Unity could hardly wait for his turn to come: "You know I love the most when we are all together and smiling. We are the ones who support a great and an important cycle. It is not good to be separated like this! We were born together, in a very distant time, we grew up together. But you are gone. I do not have anybody to share my happiness with. That is my foundation. You are my happiness! Do you understand how much you mean to us, to me and to everyone else? Look around and find us in the depth. Let the Man dignify you, since you are needed. O World, you and no one else.

Enough was said. People are not known by their words but by their actions. I have to do something and to bring you back. Now I am going to call the first assembly of HLULP (Humanity, Life, Unity, Love and Peace). My only goal is to unite all of you because I love you only in that way. Because that is the only world I want to grow up in! And I know that there is hope! Hope for a brighter future, for all of us!

Write to me soon, come back!
We are waiting and yearning,
Sofi and your foundations
